A Critical Pāli Dictionary is being elaborated by scholars from Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, India, The Netherlands, Sri Lanka.

Published by the Royal Danish Academy of Sciences and Letters in concordance with the Academy of Sciences, Letters, and Literature in Mayence with the aid of Academies and other institutions in several countries and support from UNESCO on the recommendation of the International Council for Philosophy and Humanistic Studies, sponsored by the International Academic Union.

The Carlsberg Foundation and the Danish Research Council for the Humanities have secured the completion of the vowel parts.

The Dictionary is sold by the agent of the Royal Danish Academy of Sciences and Letters:

Upananda, m., Npr. I. of a thera (PPN I 393—396), one of the "80 000" who went forth from the Sakya-kula (Sp 665,4), thus known as ~Sakyaputta (on this specification Horner, Book of Discipline II p. XLIV foll.). In the canon mentioned only in Vin, where he is called (in conformity with rules, cf. Horner, l.c. I p. XXXVIII—XL; R. O. Franke, JPTS 1908, 18—44; CPD s. v. āyasma(t), āvuso) a) in narration and by bhikkhus: āyasma(t) ~ Sakyaputta (e.g. Vin I 154,1; II 297,34; III 211,5,13,33; 220,15; IV 94,21 etc.), voc. simply āvuso ~ a, e.g. I 303,27; II 168,9-11; III 215, 18 etc., b) by laymen: ayya ~, e.g. III 215,2-19 etc., the contrast between laymen's and bhikkhus' usage being conspicuous I 214,1-5 = IV 98,33 foll. etc., III 215,27-35 etc.), c) by the Buddha, simply ~ (nom., mostly voc. ~ a), e.g. I 154,7; III 216,3 ≠ 218,22 etc., cf. contrast between the Buddha's usage and narration I 214,6-8 = IV 99,5-7; in later works, these distinctions are not likewise observed; he is called either simply ~, in narration (Dhp-a III 141,24; Ja II 444,23; Sās 157, 25) as well as by the Buddha (Ja II 441,18, III 333,2), or āyasmā ~ o (Sv 1025,19), āvuso ~ o Sakyaputto (Ja II 441,15; III 332,31), but also °-tthera (Ja II 441,5; III 332,27; Vism 81,2); Dhp-a III 13,12 °-Sak-yaputta, see s. v.; ~ is clever and popular, but his conduct is often objectionable and remains proverbial as such. He is well versed in dhamma and a persuasive preacher, but he takes personal advantage thereof (see Ja II 441,10 foll.; III 332,10 foll. and various other cases summarized PPN). Blamed as moghapurisa by the Buddha, Vin I 154,11 etc.; his misbehaviour gives rise to eight cases of nissaggiya (no. 6, 8—10, 18, 20, 25, 27), seven cases of pācittiya (no. 9; 42—46; 59); he is guilty of āpatti dukkaṭassa, Vin I 153,24—154,14, a case quoted in 19th cent. Burma by Paññasāmi, Sās 157,20 foll. In cl.s. his conduct is quoted as typical of the bhikkhu who advocates ascetic life, but is far from scrupulous himself, Sv 1025,19, Mp I 162,4-6, Vism 81,1-4. As such, he is the subject of dhamma-desanā Dhp-a III 139,10—142,13 °-Sakyaputta-tthera-vatthu, below), where he is shown as a cheat in this life and a jackal in a previous birth; as a former samudda-kāka in Ja II 441,4—442,28; — 2. of the senāpati of Magadha, when Vassakāra brāhṇaṇa was Magadha-mahāmatta, M III 13,2 (PPN I 396); — 3. of (four) paccekabuddhas listed in the Isigili-sutta: Ānanda-Nando ~ o dvāḍasa, M III 70,22 (cattāro ~ ā, Ps IV 129,30; PPN I 396); — 4. of a cakkavatti of 57 kap-pas ago, previous birth of Tinduka-dāyaka-tthera, Ap 201,3 (PPN I 396); — 5. of one in a group of three mythical fishes, Ja V 462,16 Se Ānando ~ o (Timando Ee, Timindo Ce; names of the second and third fishes apparently uncertain).

A Critical Pāli Dictionary is being elaborated by scholars from Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, India, The Netherlands, Sri Lanka.

Published by the Royal Danish Academy of Sciences and Letters in concordance with the Academy of Sciences, Letters, and Literature in Mayence with the aid of Academies and other institutions in several countries and support from UNESCO on the recommendation of the International Council for Philosophy and Humanistic Studies, sponsored by the International Academic Union.

The Carlsberg Foundation and the Danish Research Council for the Humanities have ensured the completion of the vowel parts.

The Dictionary is sold by the agent of the Royal Danish Academy of Sciences and Letters:

<sup>3</sup>ā, form of prev. u(d) before h; in some cases also = upa, and in traditional grammar regarded (with u) as an alternative (viparīta) of o, the alternative form of ava (Sadd 609,27-30, 810,47; 1.1.2; cf. the frequent vv.ll. ūh-, ūh-, oh- in mss.); — expl. as "Magadhisim" by L. Alsdorf in Pali Miscellanies (pp. 110-117: Pali ū < sa. upa and ud), Studien zur Indologie und Iranistik, 1, 1975, with ref. to Hemacandra, Geiger § 28, and esp. to Lüders, Bharhut und die buddhistische Literatur (p. 45, bhagavato ūkrānti), Beobachtungen § 110 (Exkurs über ū-had); — accord. to R. L. Turner, Early Shortening of Geminates with Compensatory Lengthening in Indo-aryan, BSOAS XXXIII, 1, 1970, pp. 171-78 (repr. Collected Papers, pp. 421-29), ud + h- (from *gh, *g'h + palatal vowel, irrespective of the intermediate stages) became ūh-, which survived in Middle and New Indo-aryan; he points out that upa and uva are normally maintained in Pali and Prakrit, and semantically ud- is quite as satisfactory; — similar views are expressed in notes written by H. Smith in 1922 (briefly stated in Saddanīti V, p. 1282: ū ... [uṣ + h]).

etarahi, ind. From a semantic point of view ~ contrasts with idāni, adhunā and ajja in the sense that the time reference of ~ is less restricted in scope, referring, from the point of view of the speaker, both to the near past and the future as well as to longer periods of time [for the corresponding usage of sa. etarhi v. At.Gr. III § 255b foll.]. In the limited number of instances where ~ is used in narrative prose in combination with idāni or ajja, the latter would seem to have a restrictive force: "just now, today". Pāṇ. II 4. 32-33); b. used adjectively (= loc. of eta-; rare); — 3. used as a conj., in which case ~ is commonly found in sentence initial position; a. of consequence, inference (often with enclitic dāni, v. Pischel § 144 and cf. sa. tata idānim); then, therefore, for that reason, on that account, in that case, in those circumstances; as correl. to sace ("if ... then ...") and kattha or yattha; b. of sequence: hereafter, henceforth, now then (cf. sa. atas; rare); — Rem.: a. The derivation of ~ remains uncertain. It is not possible to derive ~ from the pronominal stem i- + the locative suffix -tra: *itra > ettha, as suggested by Geiger §§ 9-10, since this leaves the derivation of the suffix -ttha unexplained. It is more likely that ~ is to be derived either from the pronominal stem e- (by analogy with the pronominal stem

i-) with the ablative suffix -ttha (with e- > ē before the geminate consonant) > *-stāt (cf. purattham < sa. purastāt), as suggested by Schwarzschild in JAs 244, (1956), pp. 269 foll., or from the stem et- with the suffix -ttha (cf. etto, and v. Pischel's suggestion [§ 107] of a derivation from *ittha [= sa. itthā]); — b. Whereas it is possible to explain the usage of ~ as a substitute for the abl. forms of eta- on the basis of the first of these derivations, the other usages (except the loc.) are more difficult to explain. It would seem that ~ combines to a large extent the syntactical and semantical properties of sa. atra (loc.) and atas (abl.); — gramm. lit.: sabbass' etass' akāro vā. sabbassa etasaddassa akāro hoti vā to-tha icc' etesu: ato, attha; etto, ~, Kacc 231 and Kacc-v ad loc. ≠ Sadd 676,17-18; e to-thesu vā. sabbass' etasaddassa ekāro hoti vā to-tha icc' etesu: etto, ato; ~, attha, Kacc 233 and Kacc-v ad loc.; sabbādito sattamā tra-itthā, Mogg IV 111; katth'-ettha-kutūtra-kvēhida ... etasmim: ~, atra, 112 and Mogg-v ad loc.; cf. Okāsa-dīpanī, f., Npr., "explanation of space or realms", a pa. text, probably on cosmology (v. Okāsa-loka) ascribed to (Pa-tū-kri<sup>3</sup>) Saṅgharāja(n), preceptor of King Thadominbya, who built Ava (= Ratanapura) in A.D. 1364; v. Piṭ-sm § 366; cf. PLB p. 40; the work is possibly identical with Lokadīpanī by the same author (Piṭ-sm § 345); Thadominbya (=Sa-tui'maṇ'phrā<sup>3</sup>) is identical with Satva-rāja(n), Sās 90,30; 92,8; “Saṅgha-rājan” is also mentioned as preceptor of Adhika-rāja(n), identified with King Mañ’khoṇ (A.D. 1401–22), Sās 94,3; “Lokadīpani by Paṭūgyisaṅgharāja (= Pā-iū-kri’ saṅgharāja(n)) of Ava” occurs in a list of “Pāli works written at the close of the 15th and the beginning of the 16th centuries”, E. Forchhammer, Jardine Prize, an Essay on the Sources and Development of Burmese Law ..., Rangoon 1885, p. 67; this late date would fit the reign of Mañ’khoṇ II (A.D. 1481–1502), a time of great literary activity in Burma; cf. Dutiyādhikarāja(n), Sās 98,26.
